Martyn's Law Readiness Assessment

Are you prepared for the Terrorism (Protection of Premises) Act 2025?

Martyn's Law will introduce new responsibilities for organisations responsible for publicly accessible premises and events across the UK. Whether you manage a single building or a large estate, preparing now will make future compliance simpler and help strengthen the safety and resilience of your organisation.

This Readiness Assessment has been developed by PTSG Fire Solutions to help you evaluate your current arrangements, identify potential gaps and understand where further planning may be required.

This assessment is intended as a practical guide and should not be considered legal advice.

Step 1: Understanding Your Organisation

Does Martyn's Law apply to your premises?

- ☐ We have reviewed whether our premises are likely to fall within the scope of Martyn's Law.
- ☐ We understand our maximum occupancy.
- ☐ We know whether we are likely to fall within the Standard Tier (200–799 occupants) or Enhanced Tier (800+ occupants).
- ☐ A senior person has been identified to oversee preparedness.

Score: ____ / 4

Step 2: Leadership & Governance

- ☐ Responsibility for Martyn's Law preparedness has been clearly assigned.
- ☐ Senior leadership is aware of the forthcoming legislation.
- ☐ Emergency preparedness is regularly discussed as part of organisational risk management.
- ☐ Emergency plans are formally reviewed and updated.
- ☐ Responsibilities are documented and communicated.

Score: ____ / 5

Step 3: Emergency Planning

- ☐ We have documented emergency response procedures.
- ☐ We have an evacuation procedure.
- ☐ We have an invacuation procedure.
- ☐ We have a lockdown procedure.
- ☐ We have procedures for communicating with occupants during an emergency.
- ☐ We have arrangements for contacting emergency services.
- ☐ Procedures are reviewed following significant changes or incidents.

Score: ____ / 7

Step 4: People & Training

- ☐ Staff understand their roles during an emergency.
- ☐ Emergency procedures form part of staff induction.
- ☐ Refresher training is provided.
- ☐ Emergency exercises are carried out regularly.
- ☐ Lessons learned from exercises are documented.
- ☐ Contractors and key partners understand relevant procedures.

Score: ____ / 6

Step 5: Building Security

- ☐ Access to the building is appropriately managed.
- ☐ Visitors can be monitored where appropriate.
- ☐ CCTV coverage is suitable for the building.
- ☐ Entry and exit points have been reviewed.
- ☐ Lockdown arrangements are supported by building infrastructure.
- ☐ External areas have been considered within security planning.

Score: ____ / 6

Step 6: Fire & Life Safety Systems

- ☐ Fire detection systems are regularly tested.
- ☐ Fire alarm systems remain fully operational.
- ☐ Emergency lighting is maintained.
- ☐ Public address or voice alarm systems are available where appropriate.
- ☐ Fire evacuation procedures align with wider emergency planning.
- ☐ Maintenance records are current and available.

Score: ____ / 6

Step 7: Communication & Incident Management

- ☐ We can communicate quickly with everyone inside the building.
- ☐ Staff know how emergency information will be shared.
- ☐ Communication methods have been tested.
- ☐ Key contact details are kept up to date.
- ☐ Business continuity plans have been considered alongside emergency response.

Score: ____ / 5

Step 8: Enhanced Tier Readiness

(Complete if you expect your premises to accommodate 800 or more people.)

- ☐ Physical security measures have been reviewed.
- ☐ Vulnerable areas have been identified.
- ☐ Appropriate public protection measures have been considered.
- ☐ Documentation is being prepared to demonstrate compliance.
- ☐ A designated senior individual has been identified.
- ☐ Plans are in place to meet future Security Industry Authority (SIA) requirements.

Score: ____ / 6

Your Overall Readiness

38-45 points

Well Prepared

You have strong foundations in place and appear to be taking a proactive approach to Martyn's Law preparedness. Continue reviewing your arrangements as Government guidance develops.

26-37 points

Making Good Progress

Your organisation has many of the right elements in place, but there are likely to be opportunities to strengthen procedures, governance or physical measures before the legislation comes into force.

25 points or below

Action Recommended

Your organisation may have significant gaps in its preparedness. Beginning a structured review now will reduce future risk and help ensure compliance can be achieved in a planned, proportionate way.

How PTSG Fire Solutions Can Help
